Fork me on Github Fork my project on Github.Q: git repository doesn't work when copied to git server's cache I have a git repository and in it there is a repo that is used by many others. If I copy that repo to the server's cache, if I try to clone it from the server, it says that it can't access the repo. And this is so weird because if I try to clone from the server, I can clone it without any problems. Why? A: Since you are using a private repository on your server, you probably dont have the ssh key added to your git-config. The reason you can still clone it from the server without problem, is because the clone is performed without connecting to the server. Cloning from a git server doesn't require a ssh connection (the clone method just uses git difftool). Optimization of the immunohistochemical detection of cytokeratin (CK5/6) in mammary tumors.
