In the days before federal legalization, Canadians bought products like bongos and pipes illegally. Public-spirited harm-reduction workers like Bruce Stuart, an engineer, and Duncan MacPherson, a property developer, used their conventional skills to create and sell their own brand of “weed-approved” plumbing products. Their company, Ulti-cone, opened its doors in Vancouver in 2007, and the two men soon gained a loyal clientele that continues to grow. But today, both men are fighting for their lives. MacPherson, 52, was diagnosed with lung cancer in October, after having three large tumors cut from his body. Stuart, 49, faces prison time and several potential life sentences. He was convicted in April on charges of trafficking marijuana, after police found 342 kilograms of the drug in his possession. In the months leading up to his arrest, Stuart and MacPherson worked to prove their company’s safety products are not dangerous to use. They have submitted both English and French versions of their website to the Canadian Food Inspection Agency, but they have not received any approval. As well, Stuart has lost his job as a product-testing consultant, meaning he no longer earns a monthly salary. He said he has gone hungry to pay for his mounting legal fees and medical bills. “I can’t sleep. I have lost weight, I’ve had trouble sleeping, and I’m depressed. I’m a closed-down person right now. I can’t really do anything. I can’t really speak to anyone. I can’t do anything,” Stuart told The Vancouver Sun. “There was such a lack of research and background done on these products. And the government never should have sold them to Canadians when we needed to know what was actually in them.” On Thursday, Stuart and MacPherson attended their first hearing in the Federal Court in Vancouver. The two men face fines of up to $1 million each, and up to seven years in prison if convicted. But they are hopeful that soon, someone at Health Canada will take a second look at their weed-safe products, which are not dangerous but they are not approved. “We’re trying to get them to acknowledge their mistakes,” Stuart said. “And it

The Coaker And... is a series of eight haunting pictures by BBC3's production team. They explore the relationship between people and animals and the effect that human behaviour has upon animals around us. The team asked us to create a piece of art that represented their shared obsession with the animal kingdom. We went on a journey to create a series of small but effective works of art. Ben and Joe introduced us to their home, The Coaker And..., and told us about how they built it, which was incredibly exciting. It was a zoo of re-purposed bicycle frames. Whilst at The Coaker And... we painted a selection of animal prints on bespoke bicycle frames. The frames range from heavy duty steel frames to lightweight carbon fibre frames, hence the name. AACTA Awards The AACTA Awards are presented annually by the Australian Academy of Cinema and Television Arts (AACTA) to people who have made a significant impact on the Australian cinema and television industries. The awards ceremony was first held in 2015 as part of the AACTA International Awards Gala. Winners of the International Awards are awarded a special trophy called the AACTA International Award, which is not publicly displayed. The first four International Awards were awarded to Kathryn Bigelow for the Best Director, Reese Witherspoon for the Best Actress, La La Land and Moonlight for the Best Screenplay, and Big Little Lies for the Best Television Series. Since 2016, the International Awards have been presented separately from the main AACTA Awards, and the International Award's winners have been nominated for an award of their own. The winners of the two awards are referred to as the "AACTA Awards". Australian Academy of Cinema and Television Arts (AACTA) International Academy of Television Arts and Sciences (IATAS) Film Television Nominations were announced on October 21, 2019. 2020s AACTA Awards of 2020 Best Film The Favourite Little Women Once Upon A Time In Hollywood 1917 Best Director Asghar Farhadi – The Salesman Taika Waititi – Jojo Rabbit Bong Joon-ho – Parasite Mel Gibson – Hacksaw Ridge Lenny Abrahamson – Little Women George Miller – Ford v Ferrari Claire Denis – Matmata Best Actor Timothée Chalamet – Call
